The three floors and the whole attached parking lot is busting at the seams with fabulous vintage and handmade, furniture, art, architectural pieces, indie designer, food, market bars, live bands each day, kids activities and the list goes on. Randolph Street Market is a place you go to find unique items to personalize your home and living space, your style, your tastes and senses. It is a place to shop local to support small businesses. These dealers, sellers, and makers take the hunting process out of your schedule to set up well thought out, curated booths and they travel from the Midwest and beyond. Chicago locals, New York, Pennsylvania, Florida, Texas, Michigan, Indiana, and Ohio are all represented. Each market has long-time vendors as well as new vendors every month!

Featured antique dealers from May-September include antique dealers such as: Bryan Russell of Atomic Fox Modern with his visually stimulating period pieces; Jodi Richter of SHINE has been featured in House Beautiful and brings fabulous top designer furnishings from Milo Baughman, Homecrest, Jens Rison and James Mont plus stunning industrial garden pieces; Jason Kersh of Salvage3 features industrial furniture and accessories. From harvest to coffee tables to 6 pack beer holders and growler holders. Robin Sweeney of Cosmic Girl Goes Home will delight with Vintage home decor in line w today's current design trends from boho chic, Mid Century Modern, farmhouse, and salvaged finds. Mike's Classic Bikes is a huge RSM favorite with his restored (to mint condition!) vintage Schwinn bikes equipped with baskets and bells. Check them out along with the aisles and aisles of indoor and outdoor vendors!

Fashionistas will love the unique vintage fashion as well as jewelry and accessories from the likes of famed costume jewelry dealer D. Brett Benson and other top vintage fashion sellers like Lulu's with the best selection of vintage Coach, Gucci, furs and more; Diane Landry's fun modern swing style, think cowboy boots and biker jackets; J&M Vintage offer pristine designer picks from estates in Grosse Pointe, Michigan.
